About the Program

Applied Behavior Analysis (ABA) is used to develop a variety of skills that will help children reach milestones throughout their lives. ABA can also decrease behaviors that interfere with learning and daily living.

Program elements are customized to the child's unique skills, needs, interests, preferences, goals and desires in collaboration with family.

START

Complex skills are broken down into small steps allowing the child to learn a specific skill in stages.

When the child demonstrates the desired response, he or she receives positive reinforcement which strengthens that behavior and allows for continued success.

Through the principles of ABA, kids are able to learn skills which will help them achieve greater independence for a more successful future.

Individual steps are taught using prompts, which are gradually eliminated as the steps are mastered.

Quest Kids' board certified behavior analysts systematically tracks and evaluates progress throughout the entire process.
